Paul Starr

Partner and Practice Leader
HK DR/Infrastructure,
King & Wood Mallesons

Paul Starr is Asialaw's Hong Kong Disputes Star of the Year, and joint coordinator of King & Wood Mallesons' worldwide arbitration practice. Paul is Practice Team Leader in Hong Kong for Construction and Dispute Resolution. An honours graduate in law from Peterhouse, Cambridge University, England. Paul won a scholarship and the University's prestigious Squire Law Prize.

The Global Arbitration Review cites a client's praise for Paul as: 'Simply the best lawyer for dispute resolution in construction and industrials in the East Asia and Pacific region. From the outset he goes straight to the heart of the matter, developing strong, clear lines of argument and identifying and neutralising points of weakness early in the process. He is able to inform and guide preparation of the supporting technical and financial analyses and he is excellent in marshalling the required high-quality technical resources, both in-house in the client and from external sources'.

Abstract:

Construction projects are complex, risky and impact upon the lives of all communities. Construction industry professionals and their lawyers need to have a detailed, integrated understanding of the legal landscape in which construction projects are executed. Over the years, a specialist legal profession has evolved to serve the construction industry in Hong Kong, which maintains a common law system within China. In this lecture, our guest speaker will explain the salient features of construction law and practice in Hong Kong.
